

4	Cities with higher incomes tend to have more teachers and more people going to college, so income is a confounding variable, making causation between number of teachers and number of people with college degrees difficult to prove.
CORRECT_ANSWER	4
DIFFICULTY_LEVEL	EASY